EX-GOVERNOR HILL SEES TAFT

Main Man Who Is Chairman of the Republican National Committee

Washington, March 23.—Ex-Governor John F. Hill of Maine, chairman of the Republican national committee, called at the White House offices on Monday accompanied by his fellow townsman, Representative Edwin C. Burleigh. They had a few minutes' chat with President Taft touching somewhat upon political matters.

President Taft expressed his satisfaction because Mr. Hill was to be the national chairman. In fact it was President Taft who selected Mr. Hill for the place after there had been a discussion between him and Mr. Hitchcock as to the men available.

Mr. Hill's visit here has been in part to arrange for the transfer of the national committee headquarters to Chicago after this month, but his errand here also becomes to some extent social and personal. Sunday afternoon he and Mrs. Hill were luncheon guests of Senator and Mrs. Hale, when Secretary of State Knox and Mrs. Knox, Speaker Cannon and Miss Cannon, Senator and Mrs. Crane, Representative and Mrs. Burleigh, Mrs. McMillan and Chandler Hale were among the other guests.

Ex-Governor and Mrs. Hill start today for their home at Augusta.

BALLOONISTS LOST

Los Angeles, March 23.—No sign has come from out the blizzard enshrouded mountains of the fate of the six men who sailed aloft in the big balloon America from Pasadena on Saturday. Meanwhile a search, prof-ably without parallel, is under way on mountains, in great canyons and on the desert.

The sole chance for them is that the balloon reached a height sufficient for the clearing of three mountain ranges and gained the Mojave Desert to the northward. It is not believed that this feat was accomplished and it is thought likely that Capt. A. P. Mueller, the only practical aeronaut in the party, brought the airship to earth somewhere in the mountains on Sunday night.

Besides Capt. Mueller, who has faced death before in his perilous calling, the voyagers consisted of Lane C. Gilliam, a prominent mining man, formerly of Walla Walla, Wash., now of Pasadena; Sydney Gray, Harold Parker and F. C. Dodds, of Pasadena, and one other man, whose name has not been learned.

He was removed to his home and for a while it was feared he would not recover, owing to heart trouble. Dr. Towle, the attending physician, after much work finally relieved him.

STATUS OF THE MARINES

Washington, March 23.—Secretary Meyer attended a meeting on Monday of the general board of the navy, of which Admiral Dewey is president, for discussion of the regulation issued by Secretary Newberry just before he retired from office, putting the marines aboard ship under the direct control of the officer commanding. Efforts have been made to have Mr. Meyer revoke the order.

THE WINCHESTER PROPERTY SOLD

Locke Gets Whole Square of Business Blocks

The largest transaction in real estate that has been carried out in this city for many days was consummated today when Mr. Sperry H. Locke, the well known young broker, purchased the entire Winchester block, fronting on Congress street, for $15,000. This block takes in a whole square bounded by Fleet, Congress, Porter and Church streets and includes business houses, dwellings and stables, and is located in the best section of the business district of Portsmouth. Mr. Locke is going further, and in due time will have plans drawn for a new brick block on the site of the property which came into his hands today.

According to these plans the new block will have several stores facing Congress street, dwellings fronting on Porter street with probably lodge rooms and dance and banquet halls above.

Rumors of this sale have been in circulation for many weeks and those who know the new owner congratulate him on his business move and are satisfied that he is going to do something for the interest of this city as well as for himself. The property, as it stands today, is among the best paying in the city.

STATE HOUSE BILL PASSES THE HOUSE

The Vote Was 251 to 79 on a Roll Call This Morning

Concord, March 23.—The special order on the bill for enlargement of the State House came up in the House of Representatives this morning and was the subject of a lively debate. On roll call the house passed the bill by 251 to 79.

The special order on the bill to regulate street railway fares in cities of 25,000 or more inhabitants was put over to Wednesday.

The bill for pay for the national guardsmen who served at Pine Plains was sent back to the appropriations committee.

The bill for a general corporation law was debated, and on roll call received a favorable vote, 135 to 91, but to-thirds vote not being recorded, it went to unfinished business.

The bill to make the law of negotiable instruments uniform with that of other states, went to the third reading.

The Piscataqua smelt bill was referred to the fish and game committee. The bill on school officers' salaries was referred to the education committee. The bill to require telephone companies to install instruments on three month contracts was referred to the judiciary committee.

Reported favorably: Bill to prohibit the carrying of concealed weapons. Bill for extension of state highway system.

Forwarded to third reading: Bills to prohibit soliciting by lawyers, relating to bridges, protecting gray squirrels, which was made a special order for Wednesday, relative to state prison sentences, pensioning firemen and officers of the law, prevention and removal of nuisances.

In the Senate favorable reports were presented on the bill for the annual invoice of polls and property authorizing the 1909 raising of school and municipal moneys.

Reported inexpedient: Bill for publicity of campaign expenses.

The free pass question will agitate the House this afternoon.

Monday Evening in House

French of Moultonborough offered a report as to the financial situation, and it was ordered printed in the journal, and 500 copies in separate form were ordered printed, on motion of Abner of Concord.

The statement was as follows: Hon. W. W. Scott, Speaker, House of Representatives.

Concord, N. H.

Dear Sir: In response to the resolution adopted by the house on March 18, 1909, I submit the following estimate of the income of the state, and also the expenditures, for the year ending August 31, 1909. The estimate of expenditures authorized by existing statutes is the same as for the preceding year, and is founded on the special report of the state treasurer, made Jan. 25, 1909. There will be, probably but small change in the total for the year ended, and the present year. To this I have added the amount of unexpended balances of specific appropriations available Jan. 27, 1909, making the total sum of $375,748.03. From this, I think, should be deducted the highway appropriation of $125,000, which it seems to me was erroneously included by the treasurer as available the present year. In the estimates asked by the state engineer, under the new law, is the sum of $125,000, for each of the years 1909, 1910 and 1911. I might infer from this that the $125,000 ought not to be deducted from the $375,748.03. I add appropriations asked for the present session, many of which are still pending, some it being impossible to place as to the year. Some of them may all, or part, be expended the present year. This might increase the present year's expenses and add to the ensuing year, or vice versa. In estimating the income of the state, I see no reason why I should not include the tax on stock trust funds, the increased railroad tax and the increased insurance tax.

ESTIMATED INCOME OF STATE, PRESENT YEAR.

Net income (see treasurer's report for 1908) $ 905,000.00

Expected increase from inheritance tax 20,000.00

Increase in railroad tax, caused by the increase in state tax, and by the change in manner of determining average tax rate, should add at least $102,000 to the amount paid by the railroad; of this about 60 per cent., or $61,000, would be paid to the towns and the balance would remain in the treasury 41,000.00

Change as to taxation of trust funds 62,000.00

Increase in insurance tax, estimated 25,000.00

Increase in state tax, passed in January 300,000.00

Total income $1,352,000.00

ESTIMATED EXPENDITURES.

Ordinary expenses include salaries and expenses whose payment is authorized by general law, and which are of annual or biennial occurrence. During the year ended Aug. 31, 1908, said salaries and expenses amounted to (see treasurer's statement) $ 525,471.59

Unexpended balances of

PRETTY WEDDING AT RYE

MISS BEATRICE BERRY OF RYE BECOMES THE WIFE OF HAROLD PUTMAN KNOWLTON OF MALDEN. BRIDE IS A SCHOOL TEACHER HERE—GROOM MANAGER OF OCEAN WAVE HOTEL.

There as a very pretty wedding at the Congregational church at Rye on Monday evening, when Miss Beatrice Berry became the wife of Mr. Harold Putman Knowlton of Malden.

The church was handsomely decorated for the service, a green and white effect being used, evergreen and palms with Easter lilies producing a most effective picture.

The wedding took place at seven o'clock and at that time there was a large number of relatives and friends present including many from this city where the bride was a great favorite having taught school at the Whipple school for some years.

The charming bride was handsomely gowned in a dress of white satin, trimmed with baby Irish lace, and she wore a tulle veil and carried a snow-white bouquet of lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Ruth Berry of Rye.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henry A. Barber the pastor of the church.

The groom was attended by Mr. William M. Pierce of Malden, and the ushers were Messrs. J. Elliot Knowlton of Malden, Albert E. Knowlton of Boston, Elmer J. Burnham of Kittery and James W. Hawes of Kittery, Mass.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton left on the late train for Portland and from there will leave for California on an extended wedding trip, returning in time for the opening of the Ocean Wave Hotel at North Rye Beach of which he is the manager.

Their future home will be at 65 Cedar street, Malden.

The bride is one of the most popular young ladies of Rye, and a great favorite in this city where she has taught school at the Whipple school for several years. The groom has for the past two years managed the Ocean Wave hotel and has gained a host of friends in this section.

WITH THE THEATRICAL FOLK

A Henry Miller Superb Production

"The long awaited 'Great American Play' as 'The Great Divide' has been called by many critics will be presented under the direction of Henry Miller at Portsmouth Music Hall on April 1, with Mr. Miller's magnificent production which deeply impressed New York audiences for over 600 performances during two seasons at the Princess and Daly's Theatre and later at the Academy of Music. Our playgoers will see this virile, moving, picturesque drama, with its sweep of passion and depth of sentiment, exactly as it was given in the Metropolitan. Mr. Miller will present the entire original production and a superb company of capable artists. 'The Great Divide' was written by William Vaughn Moody, the distinguished American poet and professor of English literature.

In this play Mr. Moody put blank verse and rhyme behind him, writing the emotions, vigorous prose, proving himself as much a master of direct human discourse as of fanciful utterance in dactyls and spondee. Notwithstanding that 'The Great Divide' is a play, a true poet's imagination and feeling is perceptible in its conception and treatment.

The play takes its name from the section of our country in which the first part of the play is represented as taking place, the Rocky Mountains—namely the great dividing line between the East and the West. There is deeper significance than this in the title. The play represents a struggle between the Spirit of the East and the Spirit of the West, a fight of tradition as opposed to unfettered nature. The great division between the two is the old-fashioned conservatism and the blunt civility and honor of the plains and mountains, forms the keynote.

Rich Jordan, descended from a long line of New England ancestry whose lives and thoughts are reflected in his words to Arizona and there meets Stephen Glenn, of no lineage but with innate nobility of manhood and soundness of heart. Their meeting is strange, their hearts meeting more strange. The purpose of the drama is to reconcile these antithetical natures through combined logic and love—the latter, of course, being the main deciding factor. Thus the play is pure drama; the struggle of man and woman, and the triumph of love over birth, environment, custom and all other show of discouragement. News of the triumphs won by the author and producer of this truly great play has been heralded by the dramatic reviewer throughout all America.

It is admitted beyond question that no American drama ever produced has achieved so great a success. 'The Great Divide' is a double victory for Mr. Miller, as the developing of its difficult points, the rehearsing of the various roles and the creation of the so-called 'atmosphere' which is said to be one of the production's characteristic features, gave him another opportunity to display his supreme mastery of stagecraft. The great demand to see this typical American drama is unprecedented and may be understood when one realizes that over half a million people paid to see the drama during the New York run.

The Play and The Novel Contrasted.

The average novelist writes mainly about what people say to one another; the playwright is primarily concerned with what they do to one another. The playwright must carry on his play by action, he must regard even his dialogue essentially as action. Broadly the play may be considered to be a pantomime with incidental speaking. Otherwise why ask people to look at it instead of merely reading it? Of course this is taking the play purely as a play, and not as a literature. It is simpler to regard it, and, adopting this point of view, one might deduce that fact that a play need not be written at all, since the playwright's manuscript is virtually no more than notes or aids to memory for the direction of a company of actors. In the playwright's and the actors' memories could be sufficiently trained there need be no manuscript employed; the playwright could instruct the actors verbally what to say and do. As a matter of fact, alterations in a play are often thus made during rehearsal. No doubt, however, mortal memories were made unreliable "for some wise purpose," as Mr. Wells's fungus-eater remarked. So strange is the world that what is simply a stage production for one generation sometimes becomes literature for the next.—Collier's Dramatic Number, March 20.

HOW TO MAKE BEST HOME REMEDY

A Fine Prescription to Relieve Rheumatism and Kidney or Bladder Trouble

The following prescription for the cure of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles has no doubt been filled millions of times, viz.: Fluid Extract Pandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy at little cost and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime, drinking a full tumbler of water after each dose. It is stated that this prescription is a positive remedy for kidney trouble and lame back, weak bladder and urinary difficulties, especially of the elderly people, and one of the best things to be used in rheumatic affliction, relieving the aches and pains and reducing swellings.

A well-known authority states that this mixture acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys; cleanses these spongelike organs and gives them power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood which is the cause of rheumatism.

If your back or sides ache and you suspect kidney trouble it would be wise to try this for a few days.

GOOD BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Pittsburg, March 22. Contracts to the amount of $14,000,000 have been closed in Pittsburg. The Crucible steel company of America, which has usually bought 225,000 or 250,000 tons of coal for the year, today closed with the Pittsburg coal company and the Monmouth river coal company for 500,000 tons to be used this year. Chairman Dupuy of the Crucible said the business outlook in his estimation warranted this.

The Wahash Pittsburg terminal closed with the Standard steel car company of Pittsburg for steel hopper cars to be used on local lines in hauling coal. The cost of the cars will be $500,000.

ONLY FOUR MAIL MESSENGERS

HAVE SERVED AT THE NAVY YARD SINCE THE OFFICE WAS ESTABLISHED

It is an interesting fact in connection with the history of our Portsmouth navy yard, that the position of mail messenger (formerly porter) has had but four incumbents since the yard was started in 1805. At least, there is no record of any other appointments.

Oliver Philbrick had been employed on the yard ten years and six months until in 1824 he was appointed as porter and so continued until he resigned in February, 1860. Mr. Philbrick's duties, besides being the accredited agent for carrying the mails between Portsmouth and the navy yard, included his being also boxman of the market boat, which made frequent trips every day except Sunday, across the river, propelled by four sturdy oarsmen.

(These facts we gather from an interesting letter of the late Israel P. Miller to a Boston paper in 1894.)

These oarsmen were picked from the "lodge men," of whom there were sixteen, shipped by the year for the service, who were under the orders of the Lieutenant of the yard. One was shipped as cook of the lodge; four assigned to the commodore's gig; four to the market boat; and one to other duty—the others were general utility men and worked in the officers' gardens, took care of their horses and cows and did everything else they were ordered to do. The gig's crew had a comparatively easy time, but the market boatmen, besides having to pull across the river in almost all weathers and at frequent intervals, had to accompany the porter to the various stores in town and take down to the boat all the groceries, provisions and other articles ordered, as the storekeepers did not then, as now, have delivery wagons. The boat also conveyed passengers, the officers and residents of the yard being authorized to use it, and the porter was always ready to give passage to persons from this side of the river in circumstances would allow.

Upon the resignation of Mr. Philbrick in 1860, Edward N. Anderson was appointed and continued as porter until his death, Dec. 21, 1874, nearly seven years. His son, William H. Anderson took his place Dec. 31, 1874, and held it until Jan. 12, 1891, a little over nineteen years. During his term of service the market boat was superseded by the steam ferry boat Emerald and the title of "porter" was changed to that of "mail messenger."

Hitherto the office had been considered as a life service, in which soldiers had no voice; but when Cleveland's administration applied the "pull" enough to control the situation Mr. Anderson was obliged to step down and out. For about two years he was partly at the navy yard and partly at leisure until he took the position on the Portsmouth police force, which he still holds.

Thus it appears that the office of porter and messenger at the navy yard has been held by but four incumbents since the first appointment in 1824, viz. Oliver Philbrick, thirty six years; Edward N. Anderson, sixteen years; William H. Anderson, twenty years; Albert W. Brown, fifteen years until the present time—eighty-seven years; to which we may add the ten and a half years that Oliver Philbrick previously served on the yard, making in all nearly a full century.

STATE COLLEGE

At a recent meeting of the New Hampshire College Glee club the members voted to lay aside $30 as the basis of a fund providing for the annual purchase of a gold medal, to be known as the Chase-Davis memorial prize. This prize is to be awarded commencement time to that student who has won his N. H. in some one of the various branches of athletics, and who stands highest in scholarship for the four years of his course. The medal to be awarded is in memory of Carl Chase, '09, and J. Worthen Davis '10, the two New Hampshire students who were drowned in Little Bay last September.

The local branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers held its regular meeting at the library on Monday evening. Prof. Forester E. Cardello and William S. Campbell presented an interesting paper on "Machine Tool Drive."

DOINGS OF DOVER

Dover, March 22.—One of the most delightful lectures which has been given in this city for some time was delivered yesterday afternoon at the St. Thomas parish house and Miss Lizzie J. Woods, formerly of Portsmouth, a missionary, who has been working zealously among the Alaskan Indians, described her life among the people of the far north.

The funeral of Michael S. Hanscom was held this afternoon. Mr. Hanscom died at 37 Sixth street, Saturday evening, at the advanced age of 90 years and 24 days. He was born at Center Harbor, Feb. 24, 1819, but had lived here many years. A wife, one son, J. Munroe of this city; a sister, Mrs. Ruth M. Davis of Newfields, and a grandson, Herman M. of Durham, survive.

The funeral of John H. C. Woods was held this afternoon. Mr. Woods was born in this city and had been a life long resident. His age was 66 years and 5 months. He served in the Eighteenth regiment, New Hampshire Volunteers, in the Civil war, and was a member of Sawyer post, G. A. R. and Kankamagus tribe of Red Men. A wife is the only near survivor.

The body of Edwin A. Bryant was brought here from Everett, today for interment. His death took place in that city Saturday.

Fire broke out on Monday evening in the residence of John McIntire, about a mile from this city, on No. 4 road, and before it was extinguished caused damage to the amount of several hundred dollars. The department had a hard time getting to the fire and it was three hours before all out was sounded. The cause of the fire is unknown.

MIDDLE GROUND IN THE VIVISECTION CONTROVERSY.

Extremists Giving Way to Program of Reasonable Regulation in Place of Attempts to Prohibit the Practice.

In connection with the widespread discussion of the vivisection problem the fact is pointed out that both here and abroad extreme views have culminated not in absolute prohibition, but in reasonable regulation of the practice. For many years England has had a law regulating vivisection, which was brought about by agitation that originally would have been satisfied by nothing less than prohibitive measures.

In Pennsylvania and Massachusetts there have existed for a long time societies whose object was to secure legislation against vivisection. In both states the leaders of the anti-vivisection movement have now apparently become convinced that regulation rather than prohibition is the practical solution of the problem of how to protect animals, while at the same time securing to science ample liberty to carry out useful and humane investigations.

In New York the Anti-vivisection society has announced that it will oppose the Davis-Lee bill (proposed by the Society for the Prevention of Abuse in Animal Experimentation), which would throw around the practice of vivisection such safeguards as are necessary to prevent useless and unnecessarily cruel work without interfering with investigations aimed to extend useful medical knowledge.

The Davis-Lee bill, however, has received a large measure of support from the press, the general public and a considerable number of physicians some 700 of whom have signed a petition asking for the enactment of the bill, although the State Medical society is officially opposed to it.

As between the position of the extremists, who would stop vivisection entirely, and the scientific enthusiasts who do not want any regulation whatever, the Davis-Lee bill appears to afford a middle ground upon which reasonable people of all views can meet and a strong effort is being made to secure its passage at this session of the New York legislature.

GOOD ROADS ADVOCATES OPPOSE HIGH TARIFF.

Want Asphalt, Now Required to Protect Country Roads From Automobile Wear, Put Back on Free List.

Organizations and individuals working for the good roads cause are now centering their efforts against the attempt to secure a higher duty on asphalt. All the expert testimony submitted before the subcommittee on tariff revision of the ways and means committee is in favor of returning asphalt to the free list and fixing the duty on refined asphalt in accordance with the difference in the cost of production in the United States as compared with the foreign product.

It is pointed out that a higher duty will amount simply to increased taxation for streets and roads, both on new construction and maintenance.

Outside of the cities the opposition to an increase in the tariff on asphalt is due to the fact that all the good roads experts are agreed that the only way in which a durable highway can be made that will withstand modern motor traffic is to use asphalt as a cementing material to hold together the surface of macadam roads. State and county authorities understand this fact thoroughly, as does the great organization of farmers known as the National Grange, which takes a very active interest in road matters.

A strong effort is being made to show congress that good as well as cheap roads are a far more important consideration than the protection of asphalt produced in the far west, which cannot possibly benefit states east of the Mississippi owing to the great cost of transportation across the continent.

NEW LINEN MILLS EARN DIVIDEND IN FIRST YEAR.

Quick Success of Industry Makes It Necessary to Extend Plant in Order to Meet Demand For First "Linen Made in America."

Breaking all records in New England mill history, the Oxford Linen mills of North Brookfield, Mass., have in their first year of operation been placed on a profit making basis. After only eight months of operation under its new process of linen making the mill has established trade connections throughout the country so favorable that the surplus earnings make it possible to pay a dividend for the quarter ending March 31.

Business has so increased that the present mill capacity is not equal to the immediate demand, and plans have been made for extensive additions to the plant as soon as the weather permits building to begin. Extensive water rights have been acquired with a view to using electricity generated by water power.

The advantage enjoyed by the Oxford mills is that its combined chemical and mechanical processes accomplish in twelve hours what it takes European peasants and mill workers sixteen weeks to perform—that is, convert flax straw or tow into a perfect linen fiber ready for spinning.

So great an economy of time now makes it possible for America to compete with Great Britain, Belgium or France in the manufacture of fine linen in spite of cheap labor abroad. The enormous duty on imported linen is entirely avoided, to the additional advantage of linens made here.

THE COAL TARIFF

A terrific protest is coming from Pennsylvania and West Virginia against the proposed reduction of the coal tariff, by putting it on a reciprocal basis.

And that in the face of a proposed coal miners' strike or coal operators' lockout—you hear it called by both names but they amount to the same thing, the men stopping their work of digging out the coal.

Pennsylvania and West Virginia need not greatly fear that tariff change if they will only supply the coal. Nova Scotia, the only other source of supply, furnishes coal of so inferior quality that its competition need not be greatly feared.

New England will welcome the opportunity to buy in Nova Scotia if the Pennsylvania or West Virginia supply runs short or is held at an extortionate price. The Pennsylvania and West Virginia coal people ought to realize that New England is asking only what is fair.

BIRDSEYE VIEWS

Southern men are now in practical control of the war department for the first time since 1860. Secretary Dickinson is from Tennessee. Gen. Bell, chief of staff, is from Kentucky. Gen. Winters, assistant chief of staff and president of the Army War College, is from the District of Columbia; Inspector General Garlington is from South Carolina, Surgeon General Torney is from Maryland, Gen. Marshall, chief of engineers, is from Kentucky; Gen. Murray, chief of the Coast Artillery Corps, is from Missouri, and Adj. Gen. Ainsworth, although a native of Vermont, has lived the best part of his life south of Mason and Dixon's line, so that he may be properly included in this list of southern army officials. The only bureau officers not in the above list are Judge Advocate Davis, Quartermaster General Alshere, Commissary General Sharp, Paymaster General Whipple, Chief of Ordnance Crozier and Chief Signal Officer Allen, all of whom are from western or northern states. It thus appears that there are eight southerners, including the secretary, as against six citizens of all other sections of the United States.

In his inaugural address, Mayor Dougherty of Somersworth gave figures which showed a net city debt of $206,827.25, an increase of $546.25 over last year.

Dartmouth college this year won twelve basketball games and lost five. One victory was over Harvard and two games were lost to Williams, one to Massachusetts Tech., one to Yale and one to Wesleyan. Wesleyan and Tech. were later beaten.

Bishop Niles has issued another official denunciation of the endless prayer chain which keeps going the rounds.

From a reliable news source in Carroll county comes the information that Mrs. Grover Cleveland will come to her beautiful country home in Tamworth early in June; and that the newspaper report assigning her to the Rockshires for the season is partially if not wholly, wrong.

The ordinance department of our army, as well as the military authorities of other governments, has taken up the subject of offensive and defensive weapons for use against aerial craft. Designs are now being made in the office of the chief of ordnance of the army for a gun which shall be particularly adapted for use against aeroplanes and dirigible balloons, but the policy is to keep the matter as secret as possible.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

They Do Things Differently in Massachusetts

And Massachusetts, the state in which "slightly infected" beef has been officially declared suitable for market, is the state which, only a little while ago, was throwing spasms over milk from New Hampshire and Maine—Manchester Union.

Reform Gone Wild

The gentleman from Claremont, Mr. Foster, it appears, is opposed to newspapers and railroads having a legal right to transact business in the same way which other people do. He objects to advertising being exchanged for transportation. It's broad statesmanship (?) and should lead to nothing less than the governor's chair. Mr. Foster must have had a tip from Winston direct. It amounts to but very little one way or the other so far as the newspaper men are concerned, but what they object to is being discriminated against and deprived of a right which no one questions in other people.—Newport Republican Champion.

A Foreigner Would be Amazed

Foreign critics who are fond of commenting on the asperities of American partisan politics may wonder at the spectacle of a newly elected Republican president delivering a public eulogy on one who as a Democrat was twice elected to that high office and was renowned as the most ardent advocate of party regularity of his time. But we at home are able to appreciate the event in its full significance.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Warships and the Labor Problem

It is said that England has shipyards enough to build Dreadnoughts as fast as she pleases. Her people are just now ready to appropriate the millions to the purpose. But a suspicion is raised that there is not enough skilled labor in the land to do the work, if it is planned that there shall go forward together all the construction which the yards and the purse can undertake. Yet England's unemployed problem is vast. The situation may promote the movement for taking such measures that, by another generation, England's unskilled labor may not be so shockingly large in proportion to her skilled labor as at present. The problem of unemployment everywhere is closely related to that of neglected industrial training.—Providence Journal.

The Primary Bill in New York

One of Chairman Woodruff's strongest objections to the Direct Nominations bill is that "we have a system, a party government in this state the result of more than a century of experience and consequent improvement." But is there no room for further improvement?

The nominating convention in American politics succeeded the legislative and Congressional caucuses which had taken upon themselves the duty of naming the party candidates. The friends of the caucus were no less vehement than Mr. Woodruff in denouncing the proposed change, and confidently believed that the substitution of the convention—a creature of the "unwashed Jacksonian Democracy"—meant the overthrow of established political institutions.

The revolt against the convention in its present form is not unlike the revolt against the legislative and Congressional caucus. There is a widespread movement further to democratize the nomination of candidates for public office, and whether we like it or not it seems inevitable.—New York Times.

"Pure" Maple Sugar

What formerly passed for "pure maple sugar" is once more in the market, but under the new provision of the pure food law it is labeled "blended" although this word, for some reason, is not put in large letters. Still, even the most cautious wife who takes pains to investigate will have to admit that it is there.—Kennebec Journal.

One of the many reasons which make the Metropolitan Magazine invaluable to its readers is the timeliness of its articles. "THE MAN IN PUBLIC LIFE"

SUBJECT OF AN ABLE ADDRESS

BY HON. JOSEPH O'NEIL OF BOSTON

BEFORE THE PORTSMOUTH

CATHOLIC UNION.—ENTERTAINMENT AND SMOKE TALK

A GREAT SUCCESS.

Hon. Joseph H. O'Neil of Boston, former Congressman and president of the Federal Trust Company, delivered one of the most interesting addresses heard here for some time, before the members of the Catholic Union and their guests at their rooms on Monday evening.

There was a large crowd present including an addition to the members many prominent business and professional men of the city. On the platform with the speaker were President William McEvoy, Rev. E. J. Walsh, Rev. William H. Cavanaugh and Rev. Herbert Hannon of Westfield.

Mr. O'Neil took for his subject, "Man in Public Life" and he was interesting from the beginning to the close. He showed a wide range of knowledge of men in public life, and told many interesting personal reminiscences of many of them. From the beginning Mr. O'Neil defended the public man, who he claimed was greatly abused at the present time, but maintained that the public men of this country as a rule were honest and straight forward, and because there were a few who were bad it was no reason why they all should be condemned. He said that show him any man who had been in public life ten years and it was his opinion that his word was as good as any bank president in the country. He said that it seemed to be the fashion when some people had nothing else to do, they turned and abused the public men, but the more they abused them, just so much surer were they of never being a public man themselves. He spoke most interestingly of the make up of the Congress, and claimed that it was impossible to judge a member by his looks, but it was always a good rule that when a member was returned more than once that he was a good example of the people of his district, and his experience was that the people were about always right. They might make some mistakes but they just as quickly corrected them. He spoke of the abuse that had been heaped on some of the members who represented district calling for special interest and maintained that they were just as honest as members elected from other districts. The gratitude of the American people was one thing that always could be counted on, and he cited the case of Admiral Dewey, and the change of feeling that was expressed after his marriage, until the tide was turned the other way by a cartoon entitled "Lest We Forget."

He had no place for the pessimist whom he claimed were trying to, instead of helping the world along, pull it back. The optimist, the men who believed in their fellow man and saw the bright side of life were the fellows who would succeed in this world. He ended by paying a glowing tribute to the Catholic Union and wishing it every success.

He was heartily applauded at the conclusion of his address and later held an informal reception. During the evening before and after the speaker the following program was given:

Solo, "I bring thee Violets," Master Frank Hogan
 Reading, Thomas Lynch
 Baritone solo, "Barney McGee" J. C. Dolan
 Solo, "Gramma," Master Emmet O'Leary

HILL TALKS TARIFF

Thinks Payne Bill Pretty Good But It Will Not Suit Maine

Ex-Governor Hill of Maine, the chairman of the Republican national committee, when asked at Washington if he thought the Payne tariff bill complied with the promises made in the Republican platform, said:

"On the whole it does, but there probably will have to be some modifications. It is hard, you know, to readjust the tariff to suit everybody, but the bill from a protective point of view is a satisfactory measure in most particulars. Protection is the watchword and every part of the country has its own products in which it is more interested than the products of other sections. There is a bit of selfishness in wanting the tariff revised," he said, laughingly.

"It's the fellows who have to try to adjust schedules to do justice to all interests that have the hard task."

"Up in my state there is considerable dissatisfaction on the lumber and wool schedules. We are more interested in these than in the tariff bill as a whole, and so it goes. I have no doubt, however, that the final readjustment of the tariff bill will be generally acceptable to all and will subserve the main interest of protection."

THE MEANINGS OF GLUE.

Not a Definite Organic Substance, But the Product of Several.

Glue is not a definite positive organic substance as most people suppose. Chemists tell us that glue does not pre-exist in any animal organism except under abnormal conditions—as in disease—but is the product of several transformations.

The first transformation takes place in drying the hide. If a green hide is boiled after being prepared in exactly the same manner by liming, etc., while it is yet green, an entirely different product of less consistency is secured than by drying the hide after liming and then boiling.

The second transformation seems to take place in boiling the material, probably from action of the heat. The third transformation occurs in the drying of the jelly secured in the boiling operation.

Still another transformation occurs in the drying of this jelly into actual glue, and this series of changes does not end here, for glue dissolved in water and again boiled sufficiently long loses its form once more and will not gelatinize, but will remain in liquid form.

Glue yielding substances are produced by the animal economy from proteine bodies, albumen, fibrine and caseine. The impossibility of preserving for any length of time the stock from which glue is made renders it necessary to adopt some system in choosing and preserving it until sufficient quantities are collected without fermentation or decomposition. Hence the refuse from tanneries consisting of the clippings of hides, ear and tail pieces of ox, calf and sheep, and from skins of other animals are preferred, because they can be dressed with lime, which removes the hair and acts as an antiseptic.

The ordinary bone stock glue is made from the larger bones of cattle and horn pieces, collected from different sources. A large quantity of waste bones is accumulated in the preparation of tanned provisions. If these have not been overheated and are in good condition a considerable amount of glue can be obtained from them. The bones from the head, ribs and feet give a better yield than those of the thighs and legs.

There is also the hoof glue, which is made from the hoofs of different animals. Then there is glue made from sinews and fleshings, and also a grade known as rabbit glue made from the skins of hares and rabbits. This glue makes a good water test, but should never be used to cement a belt. There is a large quantity of this glue made in this country, and a person not very familiar with it could easily be deceived.

The age of animals yielding glue stock has an important influence on the product. While from younger animals the production, as a rule, is of a lighter color, more abundant, and more easily obtained, it contains more chondrin, so that for solutions of equal strength those from mature animals will be found to be of the greater consistency and the glue more solid.

Then, again, there is what is known as the pig stock glue, which is made from the feet of hogs. Next comes the fish glue or isinglass. Its varieties are numerous, and a thorough knowledge of them can only be obtained when one is personally acquainted with the different factories and stock from which they are made.

The best of this material, however, is made from the sounds or air bladders of the different species of fish. The air bladders of the common sturgeon and other fish caught in northerly climates make the best.

MUSIC HALL

Vaudeville and Moving Pictures Play To Large Audiences.

A large attendance marked the opening day of this week's vaudeville and moving picture bill at Music Hall. The list includes three first class acts and a program of the latest moving pictures.

The headline act "The Mansfield Brothers" champion sharpshooters of the world were the hit of the show. Both performed some marvellous shots with the rifle. One holds a pipe in his mouth, which the other breaks with a shot and then shoots the buttons off his coat. One of their best shots is breaking a ball suspended on a string, getting their aim from the reflection in a mirror. They close their act by playing a musical selection on a set of bells struck by their bullets.

Mahoney the impersonator gave a good impersonation of the Italian. His "Fluffy de Ruffe" song and whistling solos were exceptionally good.

Merrill "the frogman" is a wonderful performer in his line. His contortion act is one of the best.

Harry Mulvey sang the illustrated songs to the satisfaction of all.

All the pictures are new and interesting. Mainline Daily at 2.50. Evening at 7 and 9. Ten rows in the orchestra reserved at 20 cents. Rest of the house 10 cents.

For any pain, from top to toe, from any cause, apply Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Pain can't stay where it is used.

"Mansfield Bros" sharpshooters are making a hit at Music Hall.

The track meet between the academy team and the Harvard freshmen will be held this year here, as it was last year. The date has not yet been set, but will probably be about the middle part of May. Last year was the first time that such an event was ever held, and it proved a right step between the two institutions. Harvard was the winner, but the Exeter athletes made a good showing and derived much from the competition. The track candidates are resting until the opening of the spring term, when out-of-door work will be begun.

John A. Brown has consented to become a candidate for election to the school board at the meeting which is to be held on Thursday evening of this week. Mr. Brown has served a period of twenty-one years on the board, having voluntarily declined reelection two years ago.

The first meeting of next term of the fraternity will be addressed by Clifford Pinehol, '84, chief forester of the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. George O. Wiggin have returned from a visit in Manchester.

The Fitchburg Sentinel prints the following story about a Princeton, Mass., couple, which is of interest to Exeter people: Rexford M. Lyman of Princeton and his wife, Hannah B., occupy unique positions in probate court just now, appearing as respondents in one adoption case, and as petitioners in another. They are the real parents of Olive W. Lyman, whom John W. and Abbie J. Raitt of Exeter, N. H., want to adopt and the would-be adopting parents of a girl named Odessa, whose last name and parentage are unknown to them. Their own child has lived with the Raitts several years, but they oppose the adoption proceedings.

EVENTS OF ELIOT

An Important Discussion of the Schools

Reports from the People Who Are Sick Or Injured

Eliot, Me., March 22.
There was a large attendance at the open forum on Monday evening of the John P. Hill Grange on the schools. The lecturer, Wallace Dixon, presided.

Mrs. Frank Worcester read a paper on "How can the present system of school teaching in our common schools be improved?" She particularly advocated the establishment in Eliot of grammar schools to relieve the common schools of the work with scholars nearing the age of fitness to enter the high school.

Mrs. Villa Cole gave a paper on "How do teaching and government of our common schools compare with that of 30 years ago?" She mentioned the former frequent use of the rod, which has now almost disappeared, the passing of the old time benches for modern seatings and the modern methods of heating and ventilation.

Mrs. Charles P. Drake read a paper on "How can the efficiency of our school superintendence be increased?" She earnestly advocated the union with some other town or towns for the employment of a professional superintendent.

The lecturer read a paper prepared by Miss Grace Higgins, teacher in the school near Green Acre, who is passing the vacation at her home in Rockland. The theme was "Would you advise the teaching of music in the primary schools?" Miss Higgins answered to that question is an emphatic "Yes."

Superintendent Aaron B. Cole gave an instructive talk on school law.

At the grange session prior to the open meeting, four applicants received a favorable vote for membership, and two applications were received.

Miss Adeline Paul returned on Monday from Charlestown, Mass. She is making a good recovery from the serious injuries received by falling down stairs.

Robert Wakefield, of Syracuse, N. Y., is visiting friends in town. He has just recovered from a siege with diphtheria.

Dr. and Mrs. Rogers of South Portland came on Monday for a short stay with his aunt, Miss Adeline Paul. Dr. Rogers has just been released from a sickness in the Maine General Hospital at Portland.

Miss Mary Abbie Staples, an aged woman, who lives alone, was stricken with a paralysis on Monday. She was moved to the home of her sister, Mrs. Edwin Paul.

The Social Workers of the South Eliot Methodist church met with Mrs. Ella A. Cole this afternoon.

ELKS ENTERTAIN P. A. C.

THROW OPEN THEIR NEW HOME AND ROYALLY ENTERTAIN CLUB MEN.—BOWLING A FEAT- TURE.

The members of the Portsmouth lodge of Elks on Monday evening, entertained at the Elks Home the members of the Portsmouth Athletic club, and knowing the Elks it is needless to say that they left nothing undone in making the evening one of the greatest enjoyment and an evening that will long be remembered.

The entire house was thrown open to the visiting members and there was a great many for the Athletic club almost to a man turned out and were present.

An inspection of the Home was the first duty and everybody was enthusiastic over the model home enjoyed by the lodge. The reception committee were everywhere and they had the assistance of every member of the lodge so that there was a continuous move.

The dining room was set for a salad lunch which was served the first of the evening, followed later by a most excellent fish chowder served by the club chef, Fred Berry and an efficient corps of waiters.

The bowling alleys were thrown open with the remainder of the Home and here the same hospitality was evident the bowling committee keeping the alleys crowded and there was some interesting matches.

During the evening in the Home, Rowe and Holt's orchestra furnished music and there was many vocal artists who entertained the audience with many solos and then there were the usual number of combination choruses.

Among the guests was Hon. Joseph H. O'Neil and at eleven o'clock the time honored toast of the Elks was drunk. At this time remarks were made, by Exalted Ruler Ernest L. Chaney, Hon. Joseph O'Neil, Dr. P. S. Towle and P. W. Hartford.

Later in the evening the vaudeville people at Music Hall were present and did some clever entertaining.

It was a late hour this morning before the lights were put out in the Elks Home, on the first club entertainment night. It was a great success and will long be remembered by the members of the P. A. C.

The committee who were in charge of the arrangements and who acted with Exalted Ruler Ernest L. Chaney, as a reception committee, were Messrs Charles E. Trafton, Augustine Dondoro, John G. Sweetser, Guy E. Corey, Dr. F. S. Towle, Victor Murphy, and Raphael L. Costello.

During the session, much has been said about increasing the income, and practically no attention has been given to expenditures. Is it not quite time to seriously consider this end of the finances? For one, I am in favor of dealing liberally with our institutions, spending as fair amount in improvements and doing that which will make our state still more attractive to the great number of summer visitors. I believe that from $300,000 to $400,000 can be safely eliminated from the appropriations asked; that the prospective deficit can be turned to a surplus of $50,000 to $100,000 the present year, and if the estimates for 1909, 1910 and 1911 are carefully dealt with, the state tax may be reduced to $700,000.

I have not included the state house proposition in this statement, for the reason that I consider it a matter entirely outside of ordinary expenditures. I have had more years in this house than any other member, and have suffered more from its inadequate accommodations and its poor committee rooms than others. The building is far from fireproof. Papers immensely valuable to New Hampshire can never be replaced should they be burned. I consider it an absolute necessity, and for the good of New Hampshire, that the improvements and remodeling of the state house should be made. For this reason, I voted for it in committee. I assume that I have "unanimous consent" to say a word more.

In this report is not as full and plain as desired, please consider the brief time I have had to make it, the large amount of work involved, and the fact that I have no help or suggestions from any one, and that even the typewritten work had to be done by myself. I have tried to give a fair and full statement, in other words, common in this house, a "square deal." I wish to give New Hampshire also a "square deal" in the appropriations, rather than the wishes of any man or section.

Respectfully submitted,
JAMES E. FRENCH.

Chairman Committee on Appropriations.

Legislative Notes

The Legislature started the twelfth week of the session with only 151 of the 650 measures introduced still in the hands of the committees. There were sixty more measures at legislative stages between the report by committees and the senate, or the bill killer. Twenty-six of these were in order for third reading, number killed was 283 and number passed 146.

The Senate transacted only the adjournment at the Monday evening session.

It's about time for the circus advance agent to call around if we are to have any field performance this season.

STORE BROKEN INTO

THIEVES SATISFIED WITH WHISKEY AT STORE OF THOMAS MITCHELL & CO. ON McDONOUGH STREET.

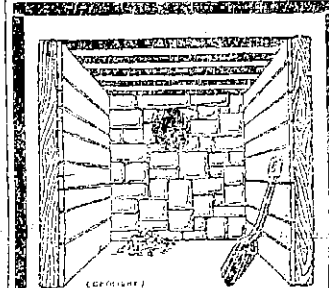

The store of T. E. Mitchell & Co., on McDonough street, as broken into some time on Sunday night or early Monday morning, and evidently, the thieves only wanted a few drinks for a half dozen bottles of whiskey was all that was taken.

The thieves gained an entrance through a window in the grocery store and then went through the cellar and up through a trap hatch to the bar where they got away with the whiskey and retired.

The police think it is the work of local parties, and some one familiar with the premises.

WORK WEAKENS THE KIDNEYS

Doan's Kidney Pills Have Done Great Service for People Who Work in Portsmouth

Most Portsmouth people work every day in some strained, unnatural position—bending constantly over a desk—riding on jolting wagons or cars—doing laborious housework—lifting, reaching or pulling, or trying the back in a hundred and one other ways. All these strains tend to wear, weaken and injure the kidneys until they fall behind in their work of filtering the poisons from the blood. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, put new strength in bad backs. Portsmouth cures prove it. D. A. Berry, 85 Congress St., Portsmouth, N. H., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills did my son more good than any other remedy he tried. He is employed on the railroad and his constant jolting and jarring of the cars weakened his kidneys. His back was very lame and at times his whole body would feel sore. Learning of the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills as a remedy for kidney complaint, my son purchased a box and began their use. Before long a cure resulted and from that day to this kidney trouble has not returned. I also used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me of lameness in my back and strengthened my kidneys. This excellent preparation can be procured at Philbrick's drug store."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

TARIFF BILL STARTED ON ITS WAY

PAYNE OPENS THE DEBATE BY STATEMENT THAT IT WILL PREVENT FOREIGN INVASION OF AMERICAN MARKETS.—THINKS THE CANAL BONDS AND INHERITANCE TAX VERY NECESSARY.

Washington, March 23.—The first gun in the tariff debate was fired in the House of Representatives Monday by Mr. Payne of New York, majority leader and chairman of the committee on ways and means, who took the floor to explain the provisions of the bill. He was applauded as he began his speech.

In opening Mr. Payne declared that the country was overwhelmingly in favor of protective tariff. "It is an American policy," he said, "and it seems to be acquiesced in by the great majority of the American people. He did not believe," he added, "that there was a man within the sound of his voice that would rise in his seat and say that he was in favor of tearing down every custom house in the United States from turret to foundation stone."

The wonderful growth of the United States, he said, was due to the protective tariff. Mr. Payne recited the conditions surrounding the enactment of the McKinley, Wilson, Dingley and present tariff measures. In the first case he said there was a superabundance of receipts "and we tried to get rid of some of it by that bill."

Coming to the Dingley bill, Mr. Payne declared that it had proved to be a boom to the people of the country in proof of which statement he cited immense collection of revenue and expenditures under it as given in his recent report of the bill. Those expenditures he said included $50,000,000 for the Panama canal for which no bonds were issued.

The entire surplus from the Dingley bill since its enactment has been about $125,000,000. The Dingley law he said, had not brought into the treasury a surplus during every year of its enactment. He referred to the rapid increase for the maintenance of the army, the navy, and the other branches of the government.

There had, however, been a deficit for the period in the postoffice receipts amounting to $20,144,479, which he attributed largely to the enormous expenditures on account of the rural free delivery. Notwithstanding such enormous drains, there was a surplus of $25,000,000 of ordinary receipts of all kinds over the expenditures. "Surely," he said, "not a bad showing for a revenue bill which was also a protective measure."

New conditions had arisen, he said which could not be met under the Dingley law, and foreign competitors were receiving better tariff arrangements than the United States could obtain. Revenues during the last several years had been falling below the expenditures. These causes led up to the movement for the revision of the tariff.

Mr. Payne said his committee had been engaged for many months collecting information. All the foreign and domestic branches of the government were utilized to gather information for the committee. Much work of this sort, he said was done in anticipation of the tariff revision.

He said that the members of the committee had prepared the bill, with out the assistance of the Democratic members in order to report the bill promptly at the opening of the special session.

Mr. Payne said it was not the intention of the House to raise the money for the construction of the Panama canal by means of the tariff bill.

The inheritance tax feature of the bill, he said, was not a part of the tariff bill.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS

And you will generally find that they know of more good, intelligent people, those of good sense and discernment in your vicinity who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's World-famed Family Medicines than by all other proprietary medicines. They have been making these cures right along for over forty years and altogether likely you will easily find people all about you who will be only too glad to say a good word for them. These old reliable curatives are not exploited or urged upon the afflicted by extravagant and false promises but have a record of real, genuine cures to sustain them.

Among women Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is truly a favorite by reason of its remarkable cures which, for over forty years by far exceed those which can be credited to any medicine extant. By a little inquiry you will no doubt find some of these cured and grateful cases in your immediate neighborhood, for they are to be met with practically EVERYWHERE. They are Dr. Pierce's best advertisements. bill, he said, ought to provide an additional revenue of $20,000,000 a year. Mr. Payne said that the canal should be paid for by the issuance of bonds "The Panama canal," he said, "is being built for the ages and should be paid for by the ages."

If the bill is passed no business will suffer and labor will continue to receive proper compensation for its product. The measure, he said, would prevent foreign nations from invading our markets. Foreign nations he added will immediately avail themselves of the minimum rates of the bill.

An agreement was reached by which while the bill is under consideration the daily session shall start at 11 o'clock instead of noon.

STREET RAILWAY DEAL
New Hampshire Traction Company Buys Line in Massachusetts

Haverhill, March 23.—The most important street railway transaction in this section of the country has been completed, and the Haverhill, Merrimack and Amesbury street railway company as a result will on April fifteenth pass into the hands of the New Hampshire Traction company.

For months past there have been all kinds of rumors involving the destinies of the Shaw road, and its name has been linked closely with that of the newer company which will hereafter control it.

Nothing definite was given out for some time by the interests involved, however, and although it was really known that the deal was on the tapis, as was stated several weeks ago, each intimation relating to it was denied by the officials of the New Hampshire Traction company, until the final story published on the authority of E. P. Shaw, himself.

There can be no further denial of the authenticity of the deal, for President David A. Belden of the New Hampshire Traction company has written a letter to Mayor Edwin H. Moulton of Haverhill, relative to work that the company will do on the state highway between this city and Amesbury. This settles matters definitely, and will be welcome news to residents along the Merrimack road.

In the Stars.
When the astronomer discovered that the comet must certainly collide with the earth, and that the result of such a collision must be the earth's instant annihilation, he grew pale. He carefully verified his figures, step by step, and grew paler.

"If this is so," he exclaimed, trembling, "I ought to be able to write a magazine article about it which would pay me enough to buy my next winter's coal!"

And he mopped the perspiration from his brow.

Absolutely Pure.
"Yes, sir," said the steamship agent to the clergyman, "we have stopped all gambling on the vessels of this line. Passengers must confine themselves to pools on the daily run, bridge whist, the wireless stock quotations, and the daily prize fight between members of the crew. If they cannot be content with such harmless amusements we would prefer they went by some other line."

The Invisible Point.
It was an awfully old joke, but the American thought it might cause his English friend to generate a smile. "Just before I sailed for Liverpool," said the American, "I dreamed that I was dead, and the heat woke me up."

IMPORTANT COMMITTEE

Washington, March 23.—There will be a new order in the making of the appropriations in the present Congress if the purpose of several senators is realized after Congress assembles in the first regular session next December. These senators are looking forward to some plan by which Congress may be fully informed concerning the expenditures of Government money which it is required to now know only in a general way. It is understood by many members of the Senate that the methods of auditing accounts in some of the departments is one that permits the approval of vouchers for expenditures that are not actually made but which stand for items of expense that would not so readily meet popular approval if plainly named. There will be an effort to reduce the appropriations for vague purposes and to confine them as far as possible to specific purposes and then to overhaul the accounting system of the department so that Congress will have greater access to the exact purpose for which money has been expended. It is said the process of "short circuiting" Congress in the expenditure of appropriations which was referred to in the debates of the last session by Mr. Hemenway has been carried on extensively in several departments. Just what plan will be adopted to allow Congress to follow appropriations until their expenditure has not been determined, but several senators are now giving a great deal of thought to the solution of what they regard as an important problem in relation to the fiscal affairs of the Government.

REPUBLICAN VICE CHAIRMAN
Ex-Governor Hill of Maine as Seen by a Washington Correspondent

Says the Washington correspondent of the New York World: John Fremont Hill, the new vice president of the Republican national committee, has been frequently described by his friends as a "gentlemanly gentleman of the new school," his perpetual urbanity of manner, affability and genial good nature seem to justify this appellation. He is extremely likable and has been popular in his home state of Maine. He is considered an exceptionally clever politician. While at all times affable and accessible he is no vice gushing or slushy. He is one of those often mentioned as a born leader of men.

Mr. Hill was among the first of the prominent New England men to climb upon the Taft band wagon. In doing so he took his luggage along, determined to remain until the vehicle pulled into port. He also took off his coat, rolled up his sleeves and performed some tall busting for his candidate. In this way he became tagged as an original Taft man.

There be some people of a mean disposition who aver that Mr. Hill was in his lot with Taft at the beginning because Frank H. Hitchcock was his manager. Incidentally it was handed out from the start that in the event of success Mr. Hitchcock would be made postmaster general. It was necessary that Mr. Hill should stand well with the head of the postoffice department because, as a publisher, there was constant trouble with the postal authorities over matters affecting second-class periodicals. It is intimated that Mr. Hill shrewdly foresaw the advantage of being on the inside of the cage with Mr. Hitchcock in order that he might have the helping hand of a friend at court in the troubles to arise hereafter.

Mr. Hill is a frequent visitor to Washington, coming both on business and pleasure. He has an extensive acquaintance among public men from various sections of the country. His suavity and personal charms have endeared him to a large proportion of those with whom he has come in contact.

It is said Mr. Hill took the vice chairmanship with the expectation that it might aid him materially in either of the Maine senators should pass away, leaving a vacancy for which he has ambitions. He has long had an eye on the senatorship but is too wise to attempt to wrest it away from either Mr. Hale or Mr. Frye, as Maine takes much pride in the leading position these men occupy in bossing the transaction of public affairs. So far as being in line for the senatorship is concerned, Mr. Hill has for years resided in the house formerly occupied by James G. Blaine at Augusta.

In addition to other personal qualifications telling to popularity, Mr. Hill is a reputed millionaire and has plenty of money for the expenditures essential to make and retain friends.

Mr. Hill is nearly fifty-four years old. He was born in Eilat, York county, Maine, Oct. 29, 1855. After obtaining an academic education he studied medicine and was graduated from the Bowdoin Medical school in 1877. He later perfected his studies and received a diploma from the Long Island College Hospital in Brooklyn. He took up the practice of medicine at Boothbay Harbor, Me., and since that time has been called "doctor" by those acquainted with that experience. After following his profession for about a year he moved to Augusta in 1879, associated himself with P. O. Vickery in the publishing business and has since followed the avocation of turning out family periodicals.

In 1889 Dr. Hill first appeared in politics, being elected to the Maine House of Representatives. He was reelected and then promoted to be state senator for two terms. He was subsequently elected governor of the state two terms. He has been a member of the Republican national committee from Maine since 1899.

It is predicted that Dr. Hill will make a popular and successful acting chairman of the great Republican organization.

REMARKABLE SURGERY

Thumb Cord Grafted for a New Hampshire Man.

Milford, March 23.—Harold Gardner, who some months ago had a remarkable surgical operation performed upon his hand, has been invited to a meeting of prominent surgeons of New Hampshire for the purpose of showing the result of a peculiar operation which was so successfully performed. Some two years ago Mr. Gardner severed the cord back of the thumb, making it practically useless and a year following an operation was performed upon it by Dr. H. L. Smith of Nashua.

Before the operation it was found that the cord had been drawn up into Mr. Gardner's arm in a manner that it could not be tied. For this reason a grafting experiment was tried with perfect results, he now having the complete use of the thumb.

The achievement of the operation was such that it was considered a remarkable step forward in surgery.

WITH THE BOWLERS

TWO-MAN LEAGUE STARTED AT ARCADE ALLEYS.— SENIORS BEAT JUNIORS.

The two men bowling league started at the Arcade alleys last evening with four teams playing. The strings were not as high as the general average of the men rolling, although some good single strings were rolled. Ham's strings being especially good.

The system of scoring is a single point on each of the three strings and a point on the total pin fall so that four points are possible.

The matches rolled last evening was Stillson and Randall vs Ham and Kelley; and Renner and Welsh vs Woods and Norton. In the match, Ham and Kelley got all four points and in the other match Renner and Welsh got three points to Woods and Norton's one.

The score.

EPPING

Winn H. Buswell, fourth son of Dr. A. C. Buswell, cut a severe gash across the top of his ankle, severing three cords. Young Buswell, who has been studying hard in preparation for graduation from the Epping high school at the next commencement, was splitting wood late yesterday afternoon when the ax slipped and struck him across the instep. His father and another surgeon dressed the wound, taking a number of stitches. Today his temperature was quite high. His speedy recovery is hoped for.

Mrs. John Ledy is seriously ill with pneumonia, although her recovery is looked for.

MINERS WILL MEET TODAY

QUESTION OF STRIKE TO BE SETTLED AT THIS TIME.—RECOGNITION OF THE UNION TO BE DEMANDED AT ANY COST.

Philadelphia, March 23.—The convention of anthracite mine workers, which assembled at Scranton, Pa., today, is expected to finally decide, so far as the men are concerned, the matter of a new agreement with the coal mine operators to take the place of the present working arrangement which will expire March 31. The mine workers are not unanimous with regard to what should be done, and therefore, the operators are more or less in the dark as to the conditions that will prevail on April 1. The operators, it is known, have a fixed plan so far as meeting the demand already made by the mine workers are concerned, but it is not known to what length they will go in changing these plans if the mine workers conclude to recede from some of their propositions. As it now stands the situation is this.

The miners have made certain demands, the principal one being the recognition of the union. The operators have flatly refused all the demands and in turn have offered to renew for another term of three years the present agreement, which is the same as that made by the anthracite coal strike commission. The miners' representatives, who are all officers in the United Mine Workers of America have declined to continue without recognition of the union and have called the Scranton convention for the purpose of making a report of their action and to let the mine workers themselves decide what further action shall be taken.

Six hundred delegates representing all the local unions in the three anthracite districts of the miners organization, will sit in the convention. Some of these are instructed to favor a strike if concessions are not made, some are pledged against such action and others will vote according to the advice given by the leaders; but the leaders, it is said, are not unanimous on any proposal so far discussed among the men. Thomas L. Lewis, international president of the union, who will attend the convention and will probably preside, says he is unalterably opposed to any agreement that does not include recognition of the organization. This, the operators say they will never grant. They fought against that attitude in 1900, in 1902 and in 1906. Whether President Lewis will advise the men to strike in case they cannot get recognition of the union, or whether he will advise the men to remain at work for the present, without making an agreement, is not publicly known.

The rank and file of the mine workers believe that the coal road presidents will close the mines April 1 for an indefinite period. They base this belief on the fact that the mines are being worked to their full capacity this month, notwithstanding that previously during March it has been the custom to operate them only about half the time. The operators have made no announcement what they intend to do next month, nor have they made any public declaration as to whether the price of domestic sizes of coal will be reduced fifty cents a ton April 1 as has been done the other years.

PELCHER'S PITCHER PLUNGING

Clarence Comes to Town and Picks a Quarrel with Raphael

There was a lively few minutes at the corner of Deer and Market streets early this morning.

Clarence Pelcher, who arrived in town on Monday, decided that things were not moving lively enough to suit him and this morning he nearly caused a riot at the North End.

Shortly after eight o'clock he appeared in the saloon of Raphael Paola, armed with a growler which he wanted filled with ale. When he got the foamy liquid he began an argument over payment and the bartender said: "No money, no beer."

Pelcher finally put down the money but continued to declare his fighting ability and the proprietor put him out. This angered him all the more and raising the pitcher he dashed it, boose and all, through the window of the door, clearing sash, glass and everything before it.

Paola, who was standing just at one side of the door, barely escaped getting the flying crockery, plate glass and boose in the face, which would no doubt put him on the dangerous list in the hospital.

Pelcher then sprinted up the street and was soon out of sight. He was later arrested by Officers Shannon and Kelley and locked up for a court hearing.

The Funeral Held This Morning at the Catholic Church

The last chapter in the unfortunate accident which deprived Miss Elizabeth Leary of life was closed today, when friends, relatives and associates gathered in large numbers at the immaculate Conception church and paid to her memory the last tributes of respect which the living can render the dead.
